DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1-38, 41-42 and 44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ratnaraj et al.

Ratnaraj et al. shows, figure 1, an authenticated assess to Internet based research and data services. In particular, the system is intended for financial data sets including those sets widely used at business schools, which include market research data (such as CRSP, Fama and Market Indices), corporate data (such as Compustat), and banking and insurance data (such as BEST and FDIC). Also see database sources 12-30 on figure 1. (The huge amount of data available in these data sources inherently incorporates the details in the dependent claims. The examiner assumes that applicant is familiar with these sources and would know that daily, monthly and yearly reports; types of securities; issuers names; investors; and so are available. Please inform the examiner if there was a particular set of information that would be excluded from the Wharton Research Data System (WRDS)). There is a CGI (electronic screen) gateway available to generate reports. In a preferred embodiment, a procedure extracts time series data (historical financial performance data) from many different kinds of data files distributed by various data vendors and stores them in a SAS.RTM. data set.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 39, 40 and 43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ratnaraj et al. in view of obviousness.

Ratnaraj et al., as applied above, shows all of the limitations of the claims except for specifying storing trustee reports, searching indenture documents, and searching for contact information.

The examiner takes Official Notice that an annual report (trustee document) would be obvious choice for one of ordinary skill in the art to consider as "other corporate financial reports" (column 4, line 41) in order to take advantage of its wealth of information in a relatively condensed form.

Based on the teaching above, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to modify the Ratnaraj et al. system to incorporate annual reports in its long list of data sources in order to take advantage of its wealth of information in a relatively condensed form.

The examiner takes Official Notice that, if a database stores data, it would be obvious to search or filter a search by any of the stored database fields in order to make use of the information.

Based on the teaching above, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to modify the Ratnaraj et al. system to specify using the system for items in its raw database including contact information and indenture documents in order to collect data to facilitate contact with an entity or determining the financial status of an entity respectively.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 4/21/06 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant asserts that claim 1, by means of antecedent basis, claims retrieving search results that consist only of securities underlying structured securities transactions. The examiner does not agree with applicant rationale, but it is moot because Ratnaraj allows for a filter to any group (column 8, lines 6-11), thus meeting the "only" requirement.

With regards to claims 39, 40, and 43, the examiner has made an obviousness rejection. The arguments are moot.
